CAITLIN WHYTE

QUICK BIO

Caitlin Whyte is a current audio producer, former news reporter, and millennial making podcasts.

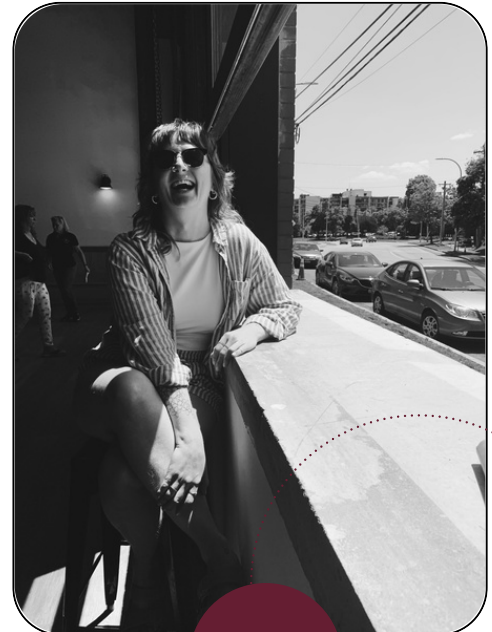

Her love of audio and sound started early, majoring in Audio / Radio Production & Broadcast Management at SUNY Plattsburgh in Northern New York.

This passion brought her to Western Alaska, where she worked as the Weekday Morning Show Host for KNOM Radio, and all the way back home to NPR member station WXXI News in Rochester, New York where she was the Weekend Edition Host and a reporter for three years.

She now spends most of her days as the Senior Producer at university.fm, helping higher education institutions produce and grow podcasts that resonate with their communities, as well as taking on freelance clients of her own.

SOME OF MY FAVORITE PROJECTS:

- Finding Fire Island Podcast: The Invasion
- I Am A Rural Teacher Podcast: Melissa Hyman in Hartford, VT
- Love's A Pitch Podcast: Christian Horse Girl K-Pop w/ Sheria Mattis
- WXXI News: Artists Unlimited productions are a family affair for many \(3-part radio series\).
